Frequently asked questions

Why should I consider another health insurance plan?

Most health insurance policies have copays, deductibles and other restrictions. Critical illness insurance can be important supplemental coverage that helps cover expenses related to six specific illnesses which are some of the most expensive to diagnose, treat and recover from. Additionally, if you do become ill, you will likely need to take time off work, which may add further stress.

Which critical illnesses are covered?

Cancer, carcinoma in situ (partial benefit), heart attack, major organ transplant, renal (kidney) failure and stroke.

How does this policy work?

If you are diagnosed with a covered illness, you will receive 100% of the coverage in force – except for cancer in situ, for which the benefit payable is 25% of coverage. How you use the cash benefit is up to you. You may need help paying medical bills, replacing lost wages, meeting living expenses or creating a college fund or estate plan for your loved ones. The plan's flexibility allows broader protection for your unique situation.

While a person is insured under the Policy, whether insurance is continuous or interrupted: (a) only one benefit is payable for any one Critical Illness; and (b) the person may only receive benefits for no more than two separate and distinct Critical Illnesses.

Can I make more than one claim?

The plan benefit may be used twice, provided the claims are for two different types of covered illnesses. The second illness is subject to a 6-month waiting period after the first diagnosis.
